

Approaching the Light

Death and Dying in the Tibetan Buddhist Tradition

A Weekend Seminar by Lama Kathy Wesley

MAY 8–10, 2009

AT COLUMBUS KARMA THEGSUM CHOLING

TIBETAN BUDDHIST MEDITATION CENTER

This course will cover lectures given by Bardor Tulku Rinpoche concerning the Tibetan teachings on the death process and how to spiritually approach death — and life. Topics will include basic Buddhist ideas about life and death; contemplation on impermanence (and how the practice brings more enjoyment to life); the phases of death; how to train one's mind in preparation for death; and how to attend and offer comfort to the dying. The root text for this teaching, written in the 9th Century by Guru Rinpoche and rediscovered in 19th Century Tibet, has not been translated into English, but one very brief commentary on it by Bardor Tulku Rinpoche is included as an appendix to his book "Rest for the Fortunate."

Interview time slots will be confirmed closer to the event
